Greetings Middle School Families:

While we were hopeful we could continue with our students in our school, we are making a temporary transition to full virtual learning effective Thursday, November 12, 2020 through the Thanksgiving weekend as outlined in Dr. Hughes' letter dated today.

As we look for this transition to virtual learning to be short-term in nature, our students will continue to follow their current schedule, using a virtual format. Students will be provided with links in their Google Classrooms for live meetings on their respective cohort days. In practice, this means that if a student usually attends in-person learning on Monday and Thursday, they now will be required to login and attend live meetings with their core area teachers. If they usually attend in-person learning on Tuesday and Friday, they will now be required to login and attend live meetings with their core area teachers. These classes will take place at the same time their classes currently do while at school. There will be no change to their "at home" cohort day as this is when students have met with support services and special area teachers. Wednesday's will remain an asynchronous day with new learning being pushed out via Google Classroom. Teachers will continue to have office hours and will work with small groups/individual students on a scheduled basis as well on Wednesday. Please be aware that attendance at all meetings is required and will count toward a student's grade.

Thank you all for your grace and patience during this time. I hope that you all remain well and please don't hesitate to reach out to me if you need anything at all during this unprecedented time.
